Mime. Yale's HAIR

It afferds me great pleasure to call the attention of the public to Mme. Yale's Excelsion Hair Tonic, which is the first and only remedy known to chemistry which positively turns gray hair back to its original color without dye. It has gene on record that Mme, M. Yale—wonderful woman chemist—has made this most valuable of all chemical discoveries. Mme. Yale personally indorses its action, and gives the public her solemn guaranty that it has been tested in every conceivable way and has proved itself to be the ONLY Hair Specific. It STOPS HAIR FALLING immediately and creates a laxariant growth. Contains no injurious ingredient. Physician; and chemists invited to analyze it. It is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary, it makes the

TAMMANY WILL RULE

Little Chance for Shepard to Be Independent, if Elected.

CREATURE OF TWO MACHINES

"Boss" McLaughlin and "Boss" Croker His Sponsors.

LATTER RUNS CAMPAIGN

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

NEW YORK, October 9, 1901. The Low campaign opened tonight with a mammoth ratification meeting. The Tammany campaign has been proceeding in the usual manner for months. By the usual manner is meant the lining up of the district forces; the counting of noses-for there is littie scratching where there is a Tammany candidate to be voted for. It is too early to discuss the chances of the reform-republican ticket. Precedent would indicate a victory for Low; but on the other side of the fence, Shepard's election is predicted by 60,000 majority. Therefore, as it is too early to indulge in figures, it is interesting to speculate upon Shepard's position should he be elected. Will he followhis past record for reform or will he be simply a Tammany Hall mayor with all that that title implies? Tammany politicians are greatly amused by the talk of Brooklyn democrats about Shepard being an independent mayor if he should be elected. The workers of the organization have heard such talk before about other candidates, but they do not remember the man put in the mayor's office by Tammany who did not obey orders. Every Tammany man who talks of the matter says that if Shepard is elected he will appoint to every office on this side of the East river the men selected for him by the squire, or "Big Tim" Sullivan, whichever happens to be in control of the ma-chine at the beginning of next year. Those who are familiar with the new charter say that it will be absurd for a mayor elected by the organization to talk about setting up in business on his own account.
"Why, we would make a monkey of him,"

Surrounded by Machine Men.

In the event of Shepard's election he will be surrounded and his board of estimate controlled by machine Tammany men. Tammany, if successful at the polls, will have four members of the board of estimate, with nine of the sixteen votes. That body is the real governing power of the city, controlling all bond issues and appropriations. The new board will be composed of the mayor, controller, president of the board of aldermen and the five borough presidents, all elected officers. The mayor, controller and president of the board of aldermen will each have three votes, the presidents of Manhattan and Brooklyn two votes each, and the presi-dents of the other boroughs one vote each, a total of sixteen. If the Tammany ticket wins the controller, president of the board of aldermen and the presidents of Manhattan and the Bronx will all be straight

They will have a total of nine votes against the mayor's three. The Richmond borough machine is a mere annex of Tam-many, and if it elects the borough presimany, and if it elects the borough president then he would vote with the larger organization. Shepard, if mayor under such conditions, would be absolutely powerless to inaugurate any reform or economy if disposed to do so. He could not begin any public improvement without the consent of Tammany. While the next administration will be able to make changes in the budget of 1902 up to May 1, the in the budget of 1902 up to May 1, that budget, of course, will be carefully made and only remedy known to chemand only restore, the money appropriated cures and restore the money appropriated for them to the city treasury, he would find his plan blocked by the Tammany majority in the board of estimate. He could not cut off one of the 111 private secretaries now receiving high substantials. ries now receiving high salaries to do work that could be done by a score of ordinary stenographers and typewriters. No mat-ter how big the present administration not sticky or greasy; on the contrary, it makes the budget for 1902, it will not be hair soft, youthful, fluffy and keeps it in curl. For gentlemen and Indies with hair a little gray, streaked gray, entirely gray and with bald heads it is especially recommended. speeches and write high-sounding mes-sages, but he Tammany leaders do not hesitate to say that he will not run the city government, except as he is ordered

"Boss" McLaughlin's Machine. It is also interesting to take note of the kind of an organization that pushed Shepard into Croker's arms. Much is heard of Tammany, but "Boss" McLaughlin's Willoughby street concern has not yet acquired a national reputation. Already what Shepard will be called upon to stand for by his sponsors can be seen from the many evi-dences of a "wide-open" town in his home borough, Brooklyn. In the borough across briodish. Brooklyh. In the borough across the bridge, from the borough hall to South Brooklyn and the Red Hook section, from Williamsburg to east New York and back again to Greenpoint, so-called "hotels" by the score openly violate the excise laws, and without the least pretense of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen the score of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen the score of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen the score of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen the score of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen the score of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen the score of concealment flaunt their vice and pands to be seen to be se ment flaunt their vice and pander to the vicious before the sight of the respectable part of the community. Dissolute women throng the principal thoroughfares of the borough after nightfall without fear of molestation. The political machinations of the Willoughby street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the willoughby the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the apenly avoided policy of the street machine as exemplified by the street machine as exemples are street fied by the openly avowed policy of cater-ing to the dissolute and criminal element of the community for the purpose of vote-getting are repellant to many strong members of the Kings county democracy, who, despite their party traditions, will unquestionably revolt and cast their ballots on election day for a clean city government by voting for the nominee who is the exponent of that principle-Seth Low, the fusion candidate. Such as these cannot hide from themselves, no matter how much they would like to do so, the glaring signs and the methods that are in vogue in the bor-ough of Brooklyn this campaign; an irrefutable admission by the Willoughby street leaders that every reed, no matter how fragile, is being clutched at just now in the frantic efforts of the democracy for support. Near police headquarters itself are some half dozen of the worst "hotels" in the borough.

Vice in Brooklyn.

While the social evil in the sister borough across the bridge is not so widespread as in this borough, it is even worse in certain sections, particularly in the vicinity of the borough hall. The streets in the neighborhood of the Brooklyn navy yard are overrun with vice. Although the borough of Brooklyn has no "red light" district, the traffic in young girls, many of them colored, s almost unrestrained, it is said. Over in the eastern district, in parts of Williams-burg, vice is rampant. The most immoral conditions prevail there. Their bravado and utter shamelessness speak volumes for the inefficiency or acquiescence of the police in Brooklyn and are sufficient evidence to the average citizen that a "liberal" police has been decided upon during the campaign by the democratic managers of the democracy's candidate, Mr. Shepard. The worst concert halls and dives in Greater New York flourish in Williamsburg. The Hamilton avenue police station, near the Hamil-ton avenue ferry, which carries passengers to the Battery in Manhattan, looks down upon a score or more of evil resorts. That is another pest spot of the borough across the river. During the Lexow investigation this part of Brooklyn was peopled by a large number of the worst women of New York's east side. Many of them have re-mained. The plague spots of Hamilton avenue flourish almost under the eye of the police and public. Many stores on the avenue are partitioned. In the front of these places cigars and candy are sold. In the rear gaudily gowned and painted women lounge about pandering to longshoremen and sailors. On Adams street, within a and sallors. On Adams street, within a stone's throw of the Adams street police station, are a number of disreputable houses. They are, however, for the most part conducted discreetly, and many of them the general public is not aware of.

It is therefore seen that, whether a Tammany candidate or a Willoughby street candidate, Mr. Edward M. Shepard stands for all that is worst in the city of Greater.

ANEW SHIPMENT OF THE ADC.

nee cannot be considered a factor in the Croker's Campaign Plan.

Croker evidently recognizes all this, for he is endeavoring to make the issues squarely on party lines. The literary end of his campaign and the Tammany spellbinders will strive to remind the public that Shepard is a democrat and Low a republican. Frantic appeals are to be made to all kinds of democrats, gold men and Bryan men, to be loyal to their party. The souire wants as little as possible said of local matters and local issues. The general order for the Tammany campaign is to create as much partisan feeling as possible and then keep on appealing to democrats to vote for Shepard because he has been all kinds of a democrat. The Tammany candidate for mayor is to follow the same cue that the squire has passed to his campaign workers. He is to attempt to make an issue of democrats against republicans. In all his speeches Shepard is expected to talk chiefly about being a democrat and try to arouse party feeling. It is stated on good authority that, despite an outward show of confidence, Croker is alarmed over the outlook and it is also stated that he is preparing to issue a personal statement. This statement, it is asserted, will eliminate him from the forefront of Tammany issues. It will also be an appeal to democrats to vote for Shepard and all the other democrats named for office by the squire. Croker is a very sensitive man, and his feelings have peen hurt many times since he came over from his English home to name candidates for Tammany. Some of his tenants have been so rude as to tell him that if he did not want to remain the chief issue in this campaign he had better go home to Wantage and stay there until after the election. He has also been told that he can never again spend ten months of a year at his English home and then come over and run Tamthe result of the election is said to have been a great surprise and disappointment to the squire. It is now asserted that he has issued orders to his confidential men to raise a fund of $500,000 or more and then to go

Shepard. The squire has great faith in betting and bluffing as campaign arguments. This year he will be able to raise a large betting fund in case he finds it necessary to put up some real money for Dusty records announce that in 1801, after many experiments and great labor, 104,000 feet of wooden pipe had been laid, connecting the Schylkill with the city and providing a pure water supply for sixty-three private houses, four breweries and one sugar refinery. The cost of this enter-prise was $220,310. Before the close of 1805 many more conduits had been laid and a general supply of water obtained for the city. In 1803 the old-time "bucket brigades" gave way to the new fire fighters the men who "ran with the old machine."

Then began a career of activity which spanned seven decades, and which has sup-plied some of the most romantic and thrilling records to be found in the archives of Philadelphia. Hose and a crude kind of carriage were purchased for $98 in 1803, and thereafter the wooden condults poured streams of Schuylkill water on all fires in

The logs, most of them spruce, yellow pine or oak, were about eighteen or twenty inches in diameter. They were drilled or bored out by a three-inch augur, and connected by cast-iron tapering sockets. Those recently discovered are well preserved, and could be used today for conduits. When the first Schuylkill connection was made a receiving reservoir was built in Central the city.

Says He Can Temper Copper.

From the New York Sun.

James H. Buffy, a civil war pensioner of Machias, Me., says that he has discovered the lost art of so tempering copper that it out and make "mash" bets, bluff and talk | will take and keep an edge equal to that loud about betting until the odds are on of steel. Mr. Duffy lives on a small farm on the road from Machias to Gardner's lake. Fifteen years ago he set up a home, made a blacksmith shop, and has since spent most of his time experimenting with spent most of his time experimenting with copper metal in various ways. About the time he set up his shop he noticed that there was a great, waste of the soldering coppers used in soldering the sardine this in the factory at Machias. He thought that if two old coppers could be welded together into one good one it would be worth something, but to weld copper required heating, which spoiled the copper for soldering pur-

He began experimenting, he says, with he result that a few years ago he surprised the factory owners by taking a lot of cast-off soldering coppers back to them nicely welded together and proved that they were better than before, because the copper did not wear away so fast. He did not cease in his experiments. The result is, he says, that he has discovered the process which. that he has discovered the process which, if not the one by which the ancients tempered copper, at least does the same work. He has made and exhibited here a copper hatchet with an edge apparently as keen and strong as steel, also a stone chisel and several broadswords. The hatchet has been sent to the Pan-American exposition, and he is making a collection of samples to and strong as steel, also a stone chisel and several broadswords. The hatchet has been sent to the Pan-American exposition, and he is making a collection of samples to send to the same place. He asserts that his discovery is very simple, and that every copper and brass worker treads upon it daily but fails to see it. He thinks that what he has discovered is but the begin-ning of a green seaweed with broad fronds, familiar to most people under the name of the "sea lettuce." Their researches have been of a highly complete character. Their researches have been of a highly complete character. In the first place, they show that when the seaweed decays it is attacked by certain species of microbes, whose action is associated with the production of sulphuretted hydrogen gas and the production of sulphuretted hydrogen gas a production of sulp and the lachrymal gland is not placed behind the eye simply to fill space or to give expression to emotion. The chemical properties of tears consist of phosphate of line and soda, making them very salty, but never bitter. Their action on the eye is very beneficial, and here consists their prescribed duty of the body, washing thoroughly that sensitive organ, which allows no foreign fluid to do the same work. Nothing cleanses the eye like a good, salty shower bath, and medical art has followed nature's law in this respect, advocating the invigorating solution for any distressed condition of the optics. Tears do not weakcondition of the optics. Tears do not weaken the sight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tenderer orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech, implying the lack of helms, tears speech, implying the lack of balmy tears, that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood.

The reason some weep more easily than others, and all more readily than the sterner sex, has not its difference in the strength of the tear gland, but in the possession of a more delicate nerve system. The nerve fibers about the glands vibrate more easily, causing a downpour from the watery sac. Men are not nearly so sensitive to emotion; their sympathetic nature—the term is used in a medical sense—is less developed, and the eye gland is, therefore, protected from shocks. Consequently, a man should thank the formation of his nerve nature when he contemptuously scorns tears as a woman's practice. Between man and monkey there is this essential difference of tears. An ape cannot weep, not so much because its emo-tional powers are undeveloped, as the fact that the lachrymal gland was omitted in his optical make-up. Seaweed and Sewage.

An interesting paper read before the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and published in the last number of the "Proceedings" of that learned body, deserves the attention of sanitarians. The paper is entitled "The Seaweed Ulva Latissima, and Its Relation to the Pollution of Sea Water by Sewage." The authors are Professor Letts and Mr. J. Hawthorne of Queen's College, Belfast. It appears that for some years the upper reaches of Belfast Lough have been troubled by a serious nuisance, arising from the loading of the air at low tide with the vapor known as sulphuretted hydrogen gas. This is the gas familiar to every schoolboy who has dabbled in chemistry as "the prince of stinks." When I add that it is inis gas to which one species of the eggs Mr. Dan Leno describes, I believe, as "not altogether recent," owes its peculiar odor, I need not further dilate on the noxious nature of the Belfast low-tide nuisance. In the north of Dublin harbor the same peculiarity exists. Naturally, people set down the odor as due to the sewage, pure and simple, but Professor Letts and his col-league assure us that it is intimately connected with the growth of the ulva, a green seaweed with broad fronds, familiar
